Instructions:

1. Find a tiny vase, such as a clean jam jar from your recycling, or something from a thrift store. Small vases are less likely to tip over and easier for someone to carry away with them.
2. Get flowers, either from your garden or by buying a grocery store bouquet. Cut the stems down to the right size.
3. Affix a label to the vase using a hole punch and string or ribbon. Add your name or write "anonymous" where the tag says "Placed by".
4. Place the flowers somewhere where they're sure to catch someone's eye. Note: Make sure they'll be safe from the elements & avoid restaurant tables. (Spots to consider: an elevator, a stairwell, along a walking path, on a park bench, in the cereal aisle at the grocery store, at the library, on your neighbor's porch, and so on...)
5. Take a photo of your bouquet where you place it and post to social media! It's fun to see all the places people choose for their bouquets. Use the hashtag #fortheonewhofindsme on Instagram or Facebook (public post setting).
6. Check the social media pages & website to see if your bouquet was discovered. Not every finder sends a photo, but it sure is cool when they do!
